HISTORICAL STATEMENT

The Baptist Education Society of the State of New York was organized in Hamilton on September 24th 1817 by thirteen men whose names are given on page 1 as founders. The society was formed "for the purpose of educating pious young men to the gospel ministry." To do this, it was first necessary to provide instruction for those who should come under its care. Arrangements were therefore made with the pastor of the village church; and the first student was received in February 1818. A charter was granted the society on March 5th, 1819 by the legislature of the state of New York, and in May of the following year a school of theology was formally opened.

During the early years the instruction was designed for those entering the ministry; and until 1839 only such were received. The length of the regular course was at first two years; but was soon lengthened to three years. In 1829 it was extended to four years. It was further extended in 1832 to six years:—the additional two years being given to preparatory work. The introduction of a collegiate course was first announced in the catalogue of 1833–4. The full course of study there laid down covered eight years:—two preparatory, four collegiate, two theological. Later the preparatory course was extended, first one year, then two; and the theological course was made three years. The first class was graduated from the collegiate course in 1835.

The expansion of the educational side of the work of the Education Society made it important that additional powers should be bestowed by the legislature. Application was therefore made in 1840 for a new charter conferring such powers, but was refused. In 1843 the application was renewed, and again refused. In order to remove the objection raised by the legislature, and upon the suggestion of the trustees of the Education Society, a new application was presented by twenty-seven men, a majority of whom were members of the Society; and on March 26th 1846 an act was passed incorporating Madison University with full collegiate powers. This new corporation assumed control of the academic and collegiate departments, and provided for the expense of instruction in the theological seminary. The Education Society continued to share in the government of the Seminary to a greater or less extent according to the successive compacts between the two bodies. By the compact of June 21st 1893 the Seminary became an organic part of the University.

The names by which the Institution was designated up to 1833 were various:—The Seminary, The Theological Seminary, The Literary and Theological Seminary, and The Baptist Literary and Theological Seminary. From 1833 to 1846 the name was The Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution. From 1846 to 1890 the name of the collegiate department was Madison University. In the latter year the name was changed to Colgate University. Since 1893 the name Colgate University has included the theological department as well as the collegiate.

The Italian Department of the theological seminary was established in Brooklyn in the autumn of 1907.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The first issue of a general catalogue of Colgate University was put out in 1905 and included all information then at hand to the end of the year 1903–04. This second issue is revised throughout and extends to the close of the year 1911–12.

The alumni lists include the names of all students, whether graduates or not, except those whose period of residence was very short.

The regular arrangement of the information after each name, so far as the material is in hand, is as follows: (1) all degrees, and graduation without degrees, first those from this institution, others in chronological order; (2) place and date of birth; (3) place of preparation for college; (4) residence at entrance; (5) other biographical data; (6) address if living, place and date of death if dead. In addition to this, in the case of non-graduates, the years of residence are put at the very beginning. In the list of seminary alumni (3) is omitted; and in the list of honorary alumni (2) (3) and (4). In the case of students entering the college from another college (3) is ordinarily omitted. In (2) where no state is given it is understood to be New York, and the state continues the same until another is given. Educational institutions included in the list of abbreviations are considered to indicate the state in which they are located without further designation. In the case of localities in foreign countries, the country is usually stated, except in connection with well known universities. Statements of occupation, denomination, etc., once given also continue in force in the same way as with states.

In statements concerning ordination and pastorate it is understood that the denomination is Baptist unless otherwise stated.

The full record of a man who was a student in both college and seminary, whether a graduate or not, is given in every case in the college list. His name, with the address and college class, is given in the seminary list.

The date is not given in the case of an AM in course from this institution.

Both PhB and BP are abbreviations of the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. PhB is used when it is a four year course, beginning with the class of 1891. BP indicates that the course was less than four years, and is used previous to and including the class of 1889.

The preparatory department is called by that name (pd) up to 1846, Grammar School (GS) from 1846 to 1873, and Colgate Academy (CA) from 1873–1912. The date of graduation is given in the case of graduates from Colgate Academy.

Previous to the college class of 1845 the *, indicating death, is prefixed to all names: beginning with that year, it is used only in accordance with definite information.

SUMMARY BY OCCUPATIONS

[In the table below column I includes those who were students in both college and seminary: column II those in college alone: column III those in seminary alone.

This table is only approximately complete. For the earlier years especially, it has been impossible to secure full data: death has eliminated not a few from this classsification: many of the alumni have been engaged in various pursuits; and, in such cases, the only occupation here recognized is the one judged to be distinctive.]

INDEX OF NAMES

[This index includes all names in this catalogue, and gives every occurrence of each name. The names of members of the Governing Bodies and Faculties are indexed by pages: the names of all alumni are indexed by years, except those of the Italian Department which are indexed by page: the names of alumni which appears in other lists have page number following year. In this index c indicates college, s seminary, and h honorary.]
